Mirko Borsche

Mirko Borsche founded his graphic design studio in 2007. Renowned for its versatility, the studio's signature design is a content-driven approach based on the idea of design as a source for learning, understanding and joy. Its creative output comprises design and communication consultancy and commissioned work of all genres for clients from the fields of culture and business as well as original works within the scope of art, subculture and design that have been shown in single and group exhibitions in several countries. The studio's portfolio contains classic print media (newspapers, magazines, books, catalogues, posters, typefaces and identities) as well as websites, music videos, art films, and exhibition, product and fashion design. It has produced work for Die Zeit magazine, kitchen manufacturer Bulthaup, BMW and Nike.
